AIROTEAS

New Disease of the Sweet Variety Is Discovered.

R Attacks Primarily the Lower Part of Stem From the Soil Line to Four or Five Inches Above It.

Washington.-A new disease, the contains ingredients not found in foot rot of the sweet potato, has recently been discovered by the patholoerop in certain localities. It was first observed on sweet potatoes growing in the vicinity of the Dismal Swamp. Virginia, during the summer of 1912. At that time it was believed to be very limited in its distribution, since search for it elsewhere was unsuccessful. The next summer, however, it was found in other parts of Virginia, namely, at Cape Charles and Keller. It is probable that it occurs elsewhere. At all of these places considerable damage was done to the crop, and in some fields as much as 60 to 95 per cent. of the plants were diseased.

The disease is known as foot rot and attacks primarily the lower part of the stem from the soil line to four or five inches above it. The fungus kills the plants by the destruction of the epidermis or bark of the stem. Sometimes the organism may attack the vine several feet from the hill, usually where the leaf is attached, and from there spreads in both directions. Small black bodies about the size of a pin point and just visible to the naked eye are formed on the diseased spots. These are the fruiting bodies of the fungus. From the destruction occasioned by this disease during the seasons of 1912 and 1913, it is not unlikely that it may be a serious menace to the crop in localities where it occurs. To what extent it may spread cannot be foreseen, though it is likely to be confined to somewhat humid

The disease may be distributed in several ways. It has been found in the hotbeds on the slips and is probably carried on them to the field. It has been shown also that the growing organism will grow from the affected potato onto the slips growing there from. Furthermore, the fungus will grow from diseased plants onto the potatoes produced from them. The organism causing the disease lives over the winter on the dead vines in the field and may infect healthy plants when set out in the spring.

The sale and exchange of potatoes or slips is another method of distributing the disease from one farm to another, or from one locality to another. This disease, like many others of a similar kind, may be distributed on farm implements, on the feet of cattle or horses which roam from one field to another. The spores may even be carried with dust during strong winds.

In view of these facts, it is apparent that sanitary methods should be em-These should consist in the careful selection of only sound, healthy potatoes for seed. The soil for the hotbed should be obtained two or th feet below the surface after throwing off the top layer, or from woods where there is no possibility that it might be infested. Healthy slips produced by these methods should be planted on ground where sweet potatoes have never been grown, or at least where the disease has never occurred. Healthy slips planted on diseased soil One day the late James McNelll will become diseased. Neither seed

These lands have now been withdrawn from settlement, and Secretary House ton will request that they be set aside as a nucleus for the proposed national forest. ALASKA'S REINDEER INDUSTRY.

There are not less than 30,000 do mesticated reindeer in Alaska today, according to estimates of the depart ment of agriculture. This means that the reindeer industry is by far the largest agricultural proposition in Alaska at this time, and more stringent government measures should be taken to prevent the rapid destruction of these animals. The industry under scientific management should develop rapidly, according to experts, and the present herds form a very promising basis upon which a great industry may be built. It appears that there have been in stances of cross-breeding domesticated reindeer and the native wild caribuo It is thought that the blood of the latter could be used to good advantage in building up the reindeer herds. At present the domesticated deer seem to decrease in size and otherwise degen erate because of the lack of careful selection of breeding animals. The caribou are superior in size and vigor, but are not of so wild a nature as to make their domestication impracticable.

HIGHEST POINT IN OHIO.

That exploration and discovery in the actual meaning of the word are not confined to the unchartered wilds of Alaska is shown by the fact that a new record altitude has been determined for Ohio. Until recently the highest point in Ohio, according to the United States geological survey, was near Mansfield, in Richland county, the elevation of which is 1,479 feet above sea level, but in the course of topographic surveying last summer by the survey a point was found whose elevation is 1,550 feet above sea level, or nearly 1,000 feet higher than the surface of Lake Erie. This place is about two and one-half miles east of the city of Bellefontaine, in Logan county, and is locally known as Campbell's Hill. It is stated to be unlikely that there is any higher point in Ohio; as nearly the whole state has now been topographically surveyed. The lowest point in the state is on the Ohio river and has an elevation of 425 feet; the average elevation for the whole state is not far from 850 feet.

DID REAL WORK.

Congressman A. J. Sabath of Chicago, along with half a dozen other congressmen, had an exciting time reaching the capitol in time to answer to the roll call at the initial session of the regular session of the Sixty-third congress.

Mr. Sabath got to Baltimore on Schedule time. There his trouble began. The trip from Baltimore to Washington should have taken about one hour. Instead it took four. Three engines broke down in the course of the trip, and there were as many transfers to other trains,

"I had a good idea of how congressmen would look as 'actors on the road." said Mr. Sabath. If these particular congressman don't work hard in Washington when they are serving their constituents, they certainly did while they were lugging their suitcases and other impedimenta from train to train."

Was Taking a Vacation.

That charity without discretion is readily abused is aptly exemplified by the story of Georgiana Simpson, an old colored woman, who was always employed by a southern family whenever extra help was needed. There never had been any difficulty in securing her services, and therefore, when three postal cards failed to bring a response one of the family called upon Georgiana to see what the trouble was. Mrs. - found Georgiana well and happy, and she welcomed her mistress very cordially. "I suttiny is mos' pow' ful glad to see you, Miss G-," said Georgiana. "An' is de fambly all torable well jes' now? "Yes, we are all well, Georgiana," said Mrs. G-"But I want to know why you didn't come when I wrote to you? We felt sure you must be ill." "Oh, no, 'deed, Miss G-," said the colored woman as she tilted her black head airly.
